ALL READY FOR LORIMER PROBE

Taking of Testimony About to Begin in Washington.

CHICAGO MEN ARE SUMMONED

Hines, Tilden and Funk Will Appear Before the Bipartisan Committee—Senator Lorimer May Be Last Witness.

Washington, June 13. — With Clarence S. Funk, Edward Tilden and Edward Hines subpoenaed as witnesses and with William Lorimer in Washington, the new investigation into Mr. Lorimer's seat in the United States senate was the talk of everybody in the capital.

The bipartisan subcommittee of the senate election committee was ready for the formal opening of the inquiry. The first work before it was the selection of its counsel. There also came up the question of employing expert accountants and others to search through records to be demanded in the case.

The exact date of the public taking of testimony had not been fixed. It was agreed, however, that Mr. Funk, general manager for the International Harvester company, should be the first witness. The committee desires that he go into details of the story he gave the Helm state senatorial committee in Illinois as to Edward Tilden, Edward Hines and other Chicago millionaires raising a $100,000 fund to "put Lorimer over."

Subpoenas for Messrs. Tilden and Hines and others had been sent to Chicago for service. It was expected these would be served during the day and that a public hearing in the case might be held in a day or two.

By the time the hearing is under way expert accountants will have been engaged to go over the books of Mr. Tilden, Mr. Hines and others for evidence of $10,000 checks alleged to have been contributed to the $100,000 "slush fund" referred to in the testimony of Mr. Funk at Springfield, Ill. These accountants will be sent to Chicago to conduct their inquiry while the hearings are in progress in Washington.

Following Mr. Funk on the stand, Mr. Tilden, who is said to have been a treasurer of the fund; Hines, Christian F. Whiehe and others who appeared before the Helm committee will be heard.

Senator Lorimer, who requested to be heard, will probably not be placed on the witness stand until all other evidence is in.

Lightning Interrupts Exercises.

TAFT RELEASES LIFE CONVICT

Man Who Prevented Delivery of Indiana Prisoners Pardoned.

Washington, June 13. — President Taft granted an unconditional pardon to Lorenzo D. Barnes, an inmate of the government hospital for the insane here, who recently prevented a wholesale delivery of insane convicts from the institution by overhearing their plans and notifying the guards.

Barnes was convicted of killing a man who had defamed his wife. While serving a life sentence he became insane, but he has regained his reason. Attorney-General Wickersham recommended his pardon with the observation that he had "taken the life of one scoundrel, but saved the lives of several government officers." President Taft denied several applications for executive clemency.

Denver, Colo., June 13.—Mrs. Edith Culbertson, Republican candidate for superintendent of the Denver county schools at the last election, shot and killed herself at her home in Denver.

Wife of Chicago School Principal Drinks Carbolic Acid.

Chicago, June 13.—Mrs. Mattie R. Minard, wife of Professor Charles Minard, principal of the Marquette public school, in this city, who was found dead in her home in Maywood, committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid, according to Dr. Henry G. W. Reinhardt, who made post-mortem examination.

Brooding over the death of her son, Percival Minard, twelve years old, who died about ten years ago, is now believed to have been the cause of Mrs. Minard's act.

MAJ. BRITTON WILL CAPTAIN RIFLE TEAM

The annual State rifle competition, for the purpose of selecting a military rifle team to represent the State of Michigan at the National Rifle matches, was held on the Grand Rapids range last week. Forty-six experienced riflemen were selected from the 2700 guardsmen by the departmental and regimental commanders last February, and have been in practice since that time under the coaching of Lieutenant William B. Wallace, 20th U. S. Infantry. Lieutenant Wallace is an Upper Peninsular man and a member of the famous Army team that won the National match of last year. He is an instructor at West Point at the present time, but will spend the summer with the Michigan team.

The Grand Rapids contest was by far the most vigorous and spirited "try out" the State has known. The ablest veterans of former State teams were fighting for every point at every range as desperately as at the National Match itself, and the result was in doubt until the last shot was fired. The winners and their scores are as follows:

Major M. J. Phillips, Brigade staff, Owosso, 1008; Captain Percy Patterson, 3rd Inf., Soo, 1005; Private Andrew Bonscore, Co. K, 3rd Inf., Cheboygan, 1002; Private Chas. Hammond, C. C, 1st Inf., Detroit, 989; Captain Wm. T. Conboy, Co. K, 3rd Inf., Cheboygan, 982; Major H. B. Britton, Signal Corps, Ypsilanti, 964; Lieut. Niel P. Geidey, Co. D, 2nd Inf., Big Rapids, 963; Captain A. C. Wilson, 1st Inf., Ann Arbor, 959; Captain Guy M. Wilson, Co. A, 3rd Inf., Flint, 952; Captain Payson Foster, Signal Corps, Ann Arbor, 951; Lieut. Samuel Pepper, Co. C, 3rd Inf., Port Huron, 945; Lieut. Geo. Bancroft, Co. K, 3rd. Inf., Cheboygan, 944; Lieut. A. B. Newton, Co. G, 2nd Inf., Grand Rapids, 943; Corporal Joseph Cowley, Corps of Engineers, Calumet, 923; Sergt Fred Hauser, Co. I, 1st Inf., Ann Arbor, 914; Bn. Sergt. Maj. Allison Grey, 1st Inf., Ann Arbor, 907; Corporal F. W. Wolf, Co. H, 1st Inf., Detroit, 904.

The team officers will be Major H. B. Britton, team captain; Captain G. M. Wilson and Lieut. Wm. B. Wallace, coaches; Colonel Geo. B. McCaughna, spotter; and Major Earl Stewart, range officer.

The National Match will be held August 21st to 24th at Camp Perry, Ohio, where teams from the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, Annapolis and the States will compete.

TWO MILAN WOMEN KILLED BY WABASH TRAIN

Milan, June 13.—Mrs. Jesse Mills and Mrs. Glasgow who lived three miles east of Milan were struck by a Wabash train Monday afternoon. One was killed instantly and th eother died a short time later.

The women were driving a young horse. When they neared the railroad crossing they saw the train approaching and stopped to wait for it to pass. When the train was almost upon them, however, the horse became unmanageable and lunged directly in front of the engine. The horse was instantly killed and the buggy demolished. Both women were thrown a considerable distance and both were dead before medical assistance could be rendered.

Mrs. Mills leaves a husband, two daughters and one son, and Mrs. Glasgow a husband and a married daughter.

THREE BIG DAYS FOR H. S. GRADUATES

The exercises marking the close of the year in the public schools began Sunday evening when Rev. Marshall H. Pettit, of the First Baptist church, gave the baccalaureate address to the graduating class, at the First M. E. church.

Wednesday evening, June 14, at 8 o'clock will occur the senior class day exercises in high school hall.

Thursday afternoon at 2:30 the eighth grade will hold their graduating exercises in the high school hall.

Friday evening beginning at 7 o'clock the commencement exercises will take place in the First M. E. church. The address of the occasion will be delivered by Rev. Lee McCollester, pastor of the Church of Our Redeemer in Detroit. Later that evening, at 9 o'clock, the alumni reunion and banquet will be held in the Masonic Temple. Tickets were put on sale Tuesday morning at Weinmann-Matthew's store, at C. S. Wortley's and at Rowima. A guarantee has been given for 125 plates. This affair promises to be more than ordinarily successful and interesting. George William Moore, chairman of the program committee, has arranged for two talks of special note. One is on "The Influence of the Press," by M. T. Woodruff, of the class of '70; the second will have for its subject, "The Relation between the Soldier, the Scholar and the City," and will be given by Prof. S. S. Babcock, who was a teacher in the Ypsilanti high school in the '60's and will be pleasantly recalled by the older people of the town. His presence will no doubt furnish the motive for many to arrange to attend the banquet. Mrs. Jennie B. Kinne writes from Alliance, Ohio, that she is on her way to Ypsilanti, and it is quiet confidently expected that she will be present at the banquet. Other speakers who have been identified more recently with the Ypsilanti schools are down also for toasts

Another circumstance which adds unusual interest to the exercises this year is that the class is especially large. It will closely approximate fifty.

BOY SCOUTS MAKE BIG PLANS FOR THE G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

Plans for the Boys Scouts' emergency camp are being gradually arranged by the committee in charge, working with a committee from the G. A. R. It is planned to have all Scouts report in uniform Tuesday morning, June 20, at the corner of Washington and Pearl streets at nine o'clock. The large hospital tent will be erected by the boys and a small tent village for their own use. The camp master for this day and Tuesday night will be Professor Quillin. About one-third of the Scouts will guard the tent this first night, and it will be arranged that each Scout will be able to spend one night in camp.

For Wednesday, June 21, day and night, Prof. Sherzer will serve as camp-master and direct the workings of the Scouts as necessity may require. One-half of the Scouts will be asked to be in service on this day, and the other half upon Friday, June 23, under the direction of Scout Master Norton.

For the big day, Thursday, all Scouts will be expected to be on duty, with Scout Commissioner Quirk serving as camp-master. The patrols will be sent in charge of scout masters to those places at which their services are most likely to be needed.

No better opportunity could possobly be offered for testing this feature of the Boy Scouts' training, and it is hoped and expected that every Scout will not stop short of his very best.

When the Scouts are all together upon Tuesday, the work will be apportioned and some special instruction given along lines most needed.

The Scouts of the city will be interested in learning that advance copies of the new manual have been received by the officers with requests for criticism. The changes in the laws and qualifications will be presented and discussed when the Scouts get together.

NOTICE—My wife having left my bed and board, I hereby forbid any person or persons from trusting or harboring her on my account as I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by her before or from this date.

POST SUIT IS DISMISSED

Federal Circuit Judge Dyer Holds That He Has No Jurisdiction.

St. Louis, Mo., June 13. — United States Circuit Judge Dyer sustained a demurrer to the injunction suit filed by C. W. Post of Battle Creek, Mich., against the Buck's Stove and Range company, Samuel Gompers and the American Federation of Labor, to restrain them from carrying out an agreement by which the Buck's company was to maintain a closed shop and the union labor boycott against it was lifted by the federation.

Post is a minority stockholder of the company and coupled with the injunction suit was a plea for damages from the Bucks' company amounting to $750,000. In sustaining the demurrer Judge Dyer dismissed the suit, holding that he had no jurisdiction.

U. S. SENATORS WILL BE ELECTED BY DIRECT VOTE

Washington, June 13.—The senate passed the resolution proposing an amendment to the federal constitution providing for the election of senators by direct vote.

The action of the senate marked the successful culmination of an effort that has extended over more than a quarter of a century to bring this question before the state legislatures. The resolution was passed by the senate by a vote of 64 to 24, two-thirds of those present, or 59, being necessary to carry the proposition.

The resolution as adopted, however, carried with it the so-called Bristow amendment which necessitates its return to the house of representatives, which had already passed it. If the house acts favorably upon the resolution in its amended form, which seems likely, it will go to the states for ratification as an amendment to the United States constitution.

The Bristow amendment aims to retain in the federal government power to prescribe the manner, time and place of holding elections for United States senators. The southerners opposed the amendment on the ground that it would give the federal government power to interfere with the so-called grandfathers clauses in the constitutions of the southern states. The vote on the Bristow amendment was a tie, 44 to 44, and Vice President Sherman cast the vote which tacked the amendment to the resolution. Upon the vice president alone may eventually rest the responsibility for the failure of the resolution, for southern senators declared that it would never be accepted in its present form by the legislatures of southern states.

These are the senators who voted against the resolution on the final passage: Bacon, Bankhead, Brandegee, Burnham, Crane, Dillingham, Fletcher, Foster, Gallinger, Heyburn, Johnston, Lippitt, Lodge, Lorimer, Oliver, Page, Penrose, Percy, Richardson, Root, Smoot, Terrell, Williams and Wetmore.

PRETTY JUNE WEDDING AT SHOWERMAN HOME MONDAY EVENING

Monday evening, June 12, at half after seven, occurred the marriage of Miss Marguerite Showerman of this city and Charles Victor Zimmerman of Wayne at the home of the bride on Washington street. The Rev. William H. Gardam performed the ring ceremony in the presence of more than one hundred guests. The bride was charming in a gown of white messaline covered with white marquisette, garnished with knots of rosebuds in marquisette and trimmed with Duchesse lace and pearl beads. A veil and orange blossoms added the final bridal note.

Miss Ellen Colvan, in a white marquisitte dress embroidered in blue, was the maid of honor. The bride's sister, Miss Helen Showerman, dressed in blue, and Miss Hildegarde Haggerty in pink, were the ribbon bearers, outlining an aisle for the bridal party. Joe Lucking was best man.

The ceremony took place between the two windows at the south end of the drawing-room. Ferns banked this space most charmingly and two high pedestals covered with green on either side were surmounted by candelabra. Candelabra stood also on the mantel over the fireplace. The flowers in the drawing-room were pink peonies.

The dining-room, where the bridal party sat during the two course supper, was very prettily lighted with candles along the plate-rail, separated by masses of green. On the table marguerites filled a large glass basket in the center and four smaller ones at the corners. The friends of the bride who helped serve were the Misses Marie Goetz, Eva Proctor, Laura Proctor, Bly Quigley, Ruth Rouse, Ellen Kishlar, Ethel Deubel and Mary Davis. Miss Sara Arnott had charge of the dining-room. Two pieces from Whitmire orchestra played during the evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman went to the Soo on their wedding-trip. They will make their home for the immediate present in New Buffalo, Michigan, sixty miles from Chicago, where Mr. Zimmerman as a civil engineer is engaged on work for the Pere Marquette. He has been recently with the Detroit tunnel people in a similar capacity.

Mrs. Zimmerman has lived in Ypsilanti all her life, practically, and is a graduate of the Normal College, where she belonged to the Pi Kappa Sigma sorority. She has taught in Battle Creek for a year and a half. Mr Zimmerman is a graduate of the University of Michigan, class of '06.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Margaret Kelly and Miss Maud Grill of Battle Creek, George Gilman of Chicago, and a large party of friends of Mr. Zimmerman from Wayne.

A lawn social will be given by the ladies of St. John's church on the church lawn Thursday evening. 13-15*

SUPT. ARBAUGH URGES THE NEED OF INCREASED FACILITIES IN SCHOOLS

To the Board of Education, District No. Four, City and Township of Ypsilanti:

I wish to place before you and through you before the people of the district a matter of more than ordinary interest and concern I refer to the need of increased facilities for our schools.

New Demands upon the Schools.

Owing to changer and still changing social and industrial conditions, the demands made upon the public schools today are different and greater than they were a few years ago. Even in a community like ours, conditions are greatly changed. The modern home offers few opportunities for developing basic skill or native capacity or for fixing, through definite tasks, a sense of responsibility in the young. The apprentice system has almost entirely disappeared, owing to modern methods and the invention of labor-saving machinery. Nevertheless, when the young man goes out to seek employment in these days, he must possess a measure of skill as well as intelligence.

While the public schools everywhere have been slow to adapt themselves to these changes, the past few years have seen marked progress in many places. Industrial education and vocational and continuation schools have come in response to a demand for training to suit present conditions and needs. The activities and interests of the outside world are being brought into the schools and made a means of education. That this is a movement in the right direction there can be little doubt. If the schools are to be measured by their service in helping children of all classes and of varied talents and varying degrees of ability to find their sphere of highest usefulness and efficiency in the world, it is obvious that there must be provided a broader basis of training than now exists. For, notwithstanding vast expenditures for the means of education, the training of the schools is still of what may be called the traditional type. Today children are being sent to school in increasingly large numbers, owing to the raised age limit for compulsory attendance. Many of these are incapable of, or disinclined to, acquiring the education provided through the traditional courses of study. More and more of them, as time goes on, must find their way into business and industrial pursuits, and the preparation for such careers must be provided by the schools. What has been said is not meant as adverse criticism of present courses of study in their entirety. The point simply stated is that more is being demanded of the schools by the highly diversified interests and activities of modern life.

Industrial and Agricultural Education.

While ours is not essentially an industrial community, and therefore, does not at the present time call for industrial training on an extensive scale in the public schools, there is need, if not of change of emphasis, of some departure along certain lines from what we are now doing. The interest in domestic science and art and manual training in high school classes reveals the possibilities that this work affords. At present, however, the amount of this work to be obtained in the high school is quite limited—just one-sixteenth that required for graduation. Why would it not be well if at least one-fourth of the graduation requirement could be met by offering work of this character? As it is now, the subjects taught are mainly those that prepare for college. These need not be dropped, and there need be no fear that the number taking them would be diminished.

Again, the schools have been educating away from the farm. It is only within the past few years that the life and work of the farm have begun to receive attention in high school courses of study. Indeed, the boy or girl who comes from the country, to attend school usually does so with a view to escaping what we, by lack of any reference to it at all, brand as unworthy of a place in the school. Hundreds of boys and girls have come from the country to our own high school, but few of them have returned to its life and interests. I can conceive of nothing more fitting or more worth while than the recognition of agriculture as a subject worthy of a place in a school which, like ours, is in the midst of an agricultural community.

Provision should be made, also, for instruction in commercial branches

LAST GRADUATING RECITAL WAS GIVEN MONDAY BY W. REYER

The last in the series of graduating recitals was given Monday evening in Normal Hall by Ypsilanti's most popular tenor, William F. Reyer. Mr. Reyer was assisted by a pianist who is not less a favorite, Minor White of the Conservatory faculty. The accompaniments were admirably played by the director, Prof. Alexander.

The program opened with a group of Italian songs, of which the second was particularly entrancing. Puccini's "Che gelida manina" from "La Boheme" was the aria which Mr. Reyer next sung with immense satisfaction to the audience.

Mr. White played Stojowski's Prelude in E Flat minor and the familiar Chopin nocturne in G .

Mr. Reyer sang three songs in German. Of these "Ein Traum" lent itself especially to Mr. Reyer's characteristic style, and the other a Grieg song, "Zur Johannisnacht," with its difficult and elaborate accompaniment, was splendidly sung.

Rubinstein's Staccata Etude in C, was splendidly played by Mr. White.

Mr. Reyer's last group was three American ballads. They were quite different in effect, the appealing "Uncle Rome" placed between the vivacious banjo song also by Sidney Homer and a song by Harvey W. Loomis, "A Little Dutch Garden," which was extremely quaint and gay and wholesome.

The reception accorded both Mr. Reyer and Mr. White was exceedingly cordial. A great quantity of American Beauties was given Mr. Reyer and his fraternity, the Kappa Phi Alpha, attended in a body.

TUESDAY, JUNE 13, 1911

"Ten years from now America will be an absolutely birdless land, unless some action is immediately taken to stop the present destruction of song and game birds," says William T. Hornaday, President of the New York Zoological park. He says further, "I do not like to think that our grandchildren will be obliged to visit a public aviary if they would study birdlife, as they are now obliged to visit the Zoo if they would see America's representative animal, the buffalo. But I am convinced that this will be necessary unless the people of America arouse themselves to immediate and vigorous protest. The subject of bird protection is far more serious than the public at large appreciates. Because some of us see a few robins and larks in our own city suburbs or in the country, we are slow to understand that these cheerful little feathered creatures are being slaughtered for food in many other city suburbs and country places.

"It is only a few years since we in New York succeeded in protecting our immediate vicinity from song-bird-eating foreigners." The Zoological society proceeded to secure a law prohibiting the killing of song birds for food at least two miles around the zoological park. They had to enforce this vigorously before they succeeded in stopping the practise of the foreigners in killing the song birds. They arrested five men one day and they had the dead remains of 43 song birds in their grip and about their person. The entire bag of dead birds was preserved and is now used as an exhibit.

Mr. Hornaday further says: "The condition that obtained in New York before this law was passed illustrates the condition that obtains in almost every other section of the United States. For instance, in Pensacola, Florida, strings of robins may be seen hanging up before the doors of shops like strings of onions, and in parts of Florida larks are being slaughtered and eaten."

Mr. Hornaday offers the suggestion that we should first prohibit the sale of game and that the law should be national, not left alone to the state. "The reasons why the American people should arouse themselves to immediate protest against the sale of game everywhere are because fully 90 per cent of our legitimate stock of feathered game has already been destroyed, and because it is a fixed fact that every wild species of mammal, bird or reptile that is pursued for money-making purposes is wiped out of existence. Even the whales of the sea are no exception. At least 50 per cent of the decrease in our feathered game is due to market gunning and the sale of game. Laws that permit the commercial slaughter of wild birds for the benefit of the few who slaughter for the market are directly against the interest of the many to whom the game partly belongs. Game killed for sale is not intended to satisfy hunger. The people who eat game in large cities do not know what hunger is, save by heresay. Purchased game is used chiefly in overfeeding and as a rule it does far more harm than good.

"The greatest value to be derived from any game bird is from seeing it and photographing it and enjoying its living company in its native home. Who will love the forests when they become destitute of wild life? All of our feathered game with a few exceptions is being shot to death very much faster than it breeds."

We were told a few days ago how gardeners in other parts of Michigan had offered 15 cents apiece for toads to put in their gardens, in order to protect the garden against the various insects which threatened its destruction. The toads and the birds make possible civilization. For without the crop we cannot live, and the crop cannot live unless the insect pests which would destrop them (or destroy all possible profit in the amount of insect powder which it would be necessary to apply) were it not for the toads and the birds.

We understand there is a five-year closed season on quail, for example in this state. This is a fine thing. If the people will follow up this with a law prohibiting the use of bird-dogs in the hunting the quail or other game we will always have as many quail as we desire. And it will permit also of a liberal killing of them for actual use as food, but not for sale. We have been pleased to note in driving along the roads in the past few weeks quail running ahead of the motor car and their "bob white" songs are heard with pleasure on every hand.

The federal government by analysis found that the quail was the most valuable of all birds to the farmer. And when the farmer fully realizes, as he is beginning to, the value to him of nearly all of the birds that live about us, he will make it a point to post notices forbidding hunting on his premises. For every hunter is a trespasser on his farm and has no business there without his consent. And if he publishes notice that they have not his consent and warns against trespassing, he is in a position as is no other class and as are not all other classes combined to answer the question of how to save our bird life and answer it successfully.

Good Form

The Wedding Reception.

Congratulations are usually offered as soon as an engagement is made known, and therefore there is no need to repeat them at the wedding reception. At the reception it suffices to shake hands with the bride and bridegroom after having shaken hands with the bride's mother. If unacquainted with the bride you should not wait to be introduced to her. She will offer to shake hands with you as a matter of course, you being a friend of the bridegroom and a guest in her mother's house. If you are a friend of the bride and unacquainted with the bridegroom she will introduce him to you after you have shaken hands with her. If you have not had an opportunity of congratulating her on her engagement you might say, "I must wish you both every happiness," but it is an old fashioned custom to offer good wishes to a bride at a reception, and therefore it is seldom done. Guests pass the bride and bridegroom so quickly that to pause and to make polite speeches would occupy too much time and would weary the newly married couple greatly if all the guests were to follow this lead. Handshakes and smiles are all that circumstances admit of on such occasions. Oftener than not the bride has a word or two to say of thanks for a wedding present received on the previous evening, and this calls for a reply on the part of the sender before she can make room for another guest awaiting her turn to shake hands.

Restaurant Etiquette.

It is the custom when dining at a restaurant for a woman to precede a man when going to the table, but it is not uncommon for the man to go first, and good taste and common sense will probably make this latter the rule.

A menu card is given to the woman as well as to the man, but she has nothing to do with ordering the dinner unless the man asks her to make some selection. Even then she should not do much suggesting.

If her escort asks her to choose a salad or her own sweet she should do so without hesitation, as she should answer any question frankly before the food has been ordered. After the order has been given she should refrain from suggestion or critical comment.

If she wishes the waiter to give her a fork or any other small article that may be required through the meal she is not to ask the waiter for it, but to tell her escort that he may send for it.

A woman is not supposed to give a waiter any order, but to act in all ways as though she were in a private house.

On leaving the table the woman follows or precedes the man, as she wishes. She should put on her gloves before leaving the table.

About Invitations.

A first invitation should be accepted if possible.

A note of invitation to a dinner, luncheon or theater party should have a written note of reply within twenty-four hours so that the hostess may have time to fill the place should a guest be unable to accept.

It is polite to give reasons for declining an invitation, such as a previous engagement or absence from town. If a previous engagement is mentioned it is courteous to explain its nature.

An invitation should never be accepted provisionally—as, for instance, "I should be delighted to accept your charming invitation if I am well enough" or "if I am in town."

An invitation once accepted is a binding obligation. If illness or any other cause arises, making it impossible to go to a dinner or luncheon after having accepted, an immediate note of explanation and regret should be sent to the hostess.

There must be no delay in answering an invitation to a dinner, breakfast, home wedding, luncheon, card party, wedding breakfast or theater party.

Real Good Manners.

It is the greatest mistake to think that manners are only for society and are to be set aside with our outdoor garments when we come home. If manners are meant to hide the unsightly side of human nature, to clothe the nakedness which shocks our highly cultivated sense of what is fitting, it is surely at home that this primitive aspect is most likely to obtrude, and it is just as shocking when displayed at our own fireside as to the world at large. If parents taught the sons of the house to be polite to their sisters and if they themselves were polite to each other there would be fewer unhappy homes. Boys often think that manners are only meant for girls, but they would be none the worse or less manly, for knowing how to behave, while it is the greatest help to a girl when she goes out in the world to be able to feel at ease in society, to enter and leave a room gracefully and to find the right thing to say when her mother's friends speak to her.

LICE AND MITES IN THE POULTRY HOUSE.

By H. L. KEMPSTER,
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF POULTRY OF THE M. A. C.

PROBABLY there are no more serious pests to the poultryman than lice and mites. In fact it has been said that they cause more damage than all of the poultry diseases. For this reason it is well to know something about their habits so that one can understand the treatment of them.

A louse is an insect that crawls around on the birds and obtains its sustenance by eating the feathers and scurf from the skin. It does not obtain any blood except from an injury such as a scratch or a cut. The question generally asked is this: "What hurt do they do then?" Just let a few get on you and you won't rest until they are removed. The constant irritation, together with the injury to the plumage, are enough so that we can't afford to have more around than we have to. A louse lays its eggs on the bird. These will hatch out, and in ten days' time one louse has increased to thousands, so that one must be on the constant warfare against them. They can be carried to a poultry house by sparrows, and there are few flocks that are free from them. The thing to do is to keep fighting them, and to do this you must get at the bird by applying the treatment to the bird itself. Perhaps the most satisfactory method is the application of some insect powder. In making an application, if you repeat in about ten days, you will catch the brood that hatches out from the eggs that have been laid, and this makes a thorough job of it. In the summer, the bird generally has access to plenty of dust around the yards, and this helps a lot in keeping down the lice.

When the birds are cooped up, it is well to have a dust bath made from finely sifted coal ashes or road dust in the coop where the chickens can dust and prune their feathers. You will find that lice are not as abundant where the dust bath is present. Some people dip their chickens in some disinfectant such as Kresol Zenoleum etc., but I would advise you to do this on a very warm day and try it on a few birds before you attempt to treat the whole flock. Remember, in treating lice that the treatment must be applied to the bird and that one must keep constantly at it. A good louse powder can be made at home by mixing together thoroughly one par crude carbolic acid, three parts gasolene and then adding enough plaster of paris to take up the liquid. Spread out and let dry. Be sure and use crude carbolic acid, and the strongest acid that you can obtain.

A mite has different habits than a louse. It sucks blood from the bird and we know of them by the name red mite beause of their red color caused by that blood. It does not breed on the bird, but in dark, damp and dirty places around the house. Except on rare occasions do you find them on the bird in the day time. They hide in the cracks around the cop and crawl onto the bird at night.

In treating the mite, one can treat the roosting quarters. Keep clean, and have them built with as few crevices and crack on the inside as possible. The mites can be killed by spraying with kerosene oil, whitewash or commercial disinfectant. We generally spray with a disinfectant once a week in the summer time and occasionally paint the roosts with kerosene oil. In the treatment of lice and mites, remember that they multiply with exceeding rapidity and that a few destroyed now is as good as destroying hundreds a few weeks from now. Too many people have trouble with lice and mites because they let them get to bad before they commence to treat, and then they get into serious trouble. One cannot afford to neglect them, and it is easier to prevent by killing off the few than to let it go until it is impossible to dispose of the many.

If some of the little chicks which are brooded with the hen do not appear to be doing well, while the remainder are thrifty, one should examine it for head lice. If any are present, the chick should be treated by rubbing the head and throat with lard or vaseline. There should be nothing added to the lard or vaseline to make it more effective because the little chick is very sensitive, and it would prove injurious. Probably a large number of little chicks die each year from this cause, and a little attention will keep down the mortality.

Rules For Cultivation.

1. Kill as many crops of weeds as possible before planting.
2. Cultivate deep enough to leave a mellow dust mulch surface and yet not deep enough to prune the root system of the plant.
3. Use the hoe-shaped cultivator tooth that runs flat and cuts the weeds without digging too deep.
4. Conserve the moisture by breaking the crust which forms after heavy rains.
5. Don't cultivate beans after first blossoms appear.

in our school. At present we do very little along this line owing to lack of room and equipment. Such instruction should not be limited to bookkeeping and stenography, but in a four-year course of study could be made to include commercial geography, commercial law, industrial history, etc. Such a course does not necessarily contemplate the making of bookkeepers and stenopraphers of the students taking these subjects any more than that those who take an extensive course in manual training are to become carpenters, mechanice, or foundrymen. The purpose of all such instruction is for training along the lines of individual inclination or bent, and for affording, as far as possible, opportunity for developing what may be termer the basic skill which each individual possesses.

Physical Training.

In the line of improvement and extension, there is still another matter. In a report three years ago, I spoke of the need of physical training. At the present time we are doing little or nothing towards systematic physical training, despite the need which must be apparent to all. I only wish to repeat what I said at that time, that, in view of the conditions under which most children live at home and do their work at school, a thoroughly equipped gymnasium and a competent physical instructor is a necessity in every high school.

A New Building Needed.

But in order to carry out anything like the above extension of our school work, the first thing necessary, as you have, no doubt, already anticipated, is additional room. At the present time the conditions at the Central building are not conducive to the best school work. Almost six hundred children are provided accommodation there, from the first grade through the high school. Of this number, 250 or more are in the high school, and the arrangement of that part of the building is such as to make the best work impossible. Fundamentally, too, the practice of having both elementary and high schools in the same building is wrong. This is obvious to all who have had anything to do with the administration of schools. The limited room, too, as already stated, makes any part of the proposed extensions impracticable. Not only so, but with present courses of study many classes are over-large, and lack of room makes impossible additional classes and teachers. With the room now available, we can only continue doing the same things that have been done the past fifteen years. Practically the entire Central building could be utilized for high school purposes. At present nine rooms are occupied by the elementary grades. If the whole of this building were to be given over to the high school, two of these rooms could be thrown together and used as a session room. At least one more room is needed for increased laboratory facilities, one or two for recitation purposes, and a commercial department, one for an extension to the library, and two for the work in sewing and drawing. Two of the rooms now used by the grades are on the third floor, and if no use could be made of them at present, it would be as well, since the difficulty in reaching them makes the wisdom of their use doubtful.

In view of the needs as set forth in the foregoing, and in view of the fact that the present seems in every way most opportune for the undertaking, I would recommend that steps at once be taken looking toward the erection on the lot adjoining the Central School of a building to be used for grade school and gymnasium purposes. Such a building would make possible a reorganization of the upper grammar grades along departmental lines. A closer relation could also be effected between these grades and the high school, looking toward an extension of the high school course to five or six years by the introduction of certain subjects now taught only after pupils have reached the ninth or tenth grade.

As already stated, the present time seems most opportune for undertaking the proposed extension of our school facilities. The school district is entirely free from debt. The needs of the schools are pressing and readily apparent to any one familiar with the conditions. I need not point out that Ypsilanti's pre-eminence has always been in matters pretaining to schools and education. If she is to main tain this pre-eminence or even to keep up with the progress of the times, it behooves her people to note conditions and plan larger things for the future.

It is natural that the question of the cost of the proposed improvements should arive. Investigation shows that a building such as has been proposed, constructed in fitting style and along modern lines, together with the necessary changes in the present Central building, would cost probably $50,000 or $60,000. In addition to providing quarters for the nine elementary grades now accommodated in the Central building, this building would furnish a kindergarten room, and rooms for special and ungraded classes. The largest part of a large basement story should be devoted to gymnasium purposes.

In this report it is only fair to state that what has been proposed will mean increased cost for maintenance. Two or three additional teachers and the care of another building would be added to the present expense. However, this could be done, and the school levy yet be considerably less than what it is in very many places in the state. Some investigation shows that at the present time the school tax in Ypsilanti is only about one-half the average rate in places of the same size and larger. In view of this I cannot but believe that the people of this district will respond willingly and give the proposition of increased school facilities their hearty support.

Respectfully yours,
W. B. ARBAUGH.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many an Ypsilanti Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Ypsilanti readers.

John P. Burkheiser, 15 W. Congress St., Ypsilanti, Mich., says: "I had more or less trouble from my back and kidneys for some time and there was often a constant, dull ache across to stoop. That my kidneys were disordered and the cause of my trouble was shown by irregular passages of the kidney secretions. When I chanced to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a box at Weinmann-Matthews Co.'s drug store and upon using them as directed received great benefit. This remedy acted as a tonic to my kidneys and made me feel better in every way. There is no question about Doan's Kidney Pills living up to the claims made for them."

SPITBALLS DON'T BOTHER SWEENEY.

"I don't find that the spitball bothers the catcher any in throwing to bases," says Ed Sweeney, catcher of the New York Americans. "It depends somewhat on the pitcher, but Russell Ford wets only a small spot on the ball, and the chances are small that the catcher's fingers will take hold on the wet spot.

"There have been times when I have got hold of the wet spot and had no idea where I was going to throw the ball, yet made perfect throws. But I throw the ball with the whole hand instead of with two fingers and in that way generally avoid getting in trouble through the ball slipping off the fingers."

PIRATES HAVE MANY VETS.

No Other Club Hangs On to Old Timers as Long as Pittsburg.

There is not a club in either major league which is harboring as many veterans as the Pittsburg club of the National league. Manager Fred Clarke himself is way up in the thirties. Then comes Tommy Leach, who is not far behind Clarke in the matter of age and yet displays more energy and aggressiveness than 90 per cent of the youngsters who break into the game. Hans Wagner is by no means a kid. He has been playing for years and yet is a star. Last, but not least, comes Deacon Phillippe, the veteran twirler, who is really being carried because of the fact that he did much for the Pirates in years gone by. No other club shows such an array of veterans. When the average ball player grows old he is turned adrift, but there appears to be more real sentiment in the Pittsburg club than in any other.

Chance Not a Great Trader.

Talking about trades, Clark Griffith does not make all the bad ones. Ingerton, Miller and Pfeiffer, former Cubs, are going good with Boston; Luderus and Moran are "there" with the Phillies. It appears that Frank Chance is also something of a "philanthropist" in making deals.

CURRENT SPORT EVENTS

Sir Thomas Lipton may challenge again for the America's cup.

Washington will have a new ball park if the present plans of the owners of the club do not fall through. Work will start on the new grounds on the next trip of the Senators, July 2.

England will be represented at the motorboat races for the British international trophy by three boats. A determined effort to bring back the cup to England will be made by the British yachtsmen.

LOOK OUT FOR ST. LOUIS TEAM

Bresnahan and His Band of Pill Tossers Playing Great Ball.

IS IT A FLASH IN THE PAN?

Last Season and One Before Cardinals Caused Leaders to Worry and Then Blew Up—Club Looks Stronger Than Ever.

By TOMMY CLARK.

Diamond experts all over the country have been figuring only four teams —New York, Chicago, Pittsburg and Philadelphia—in the hunt for the pennant in the National league. But few words have been said about the St. Louis Cardinals, yet that team has been going along lately, winning with surprising regularity. Any one who thinks that Roger Bresnahan's team is out of the race has another guess coming to him. They are not far behind the leaders at present, and if they continue to play as well as they have in the past month it will not be long before they are right at the top rung of the ladder, fighting for the main position.

Much credit for the showing of the team belongs to Roger Bresnahan. This is his third season with the Cardinals—the last of his present contract. He started with absolutely nothing—the worst outfit that has probably gone to the wars in the National league since the American became a major organization.

In individual makeup he has improved the club somewhat since that time, but not marvelously. Yet each year Roger throws a scare into the opposition and threatens, at least for a time, to run them all into their caves. The very first season, with that awful excuse of an outfit, Roger had the league on tiptoe and from the jump his poor weaklings dashed out like champions. It was not the men playing—it was just Roger's inspiration. He got out of the team all the baseball in those misfits. But that was little, and when it burned out the team sank back into its normal place.

Last year Roger had an improved club, but one still weak in two vital departments—hitting and pitching. It had probably the worst outfit of seven inning flingers in either league. The exceptions were Sallee and Harmon. Last year, too, Roger made his annual play. Early in the season he drove his men hard, and at one time he had every club in the league save Pittsburg guessing as to the possibilities of his finish. But the team was not natively strong enough to stand up, and the superior quality of Brooklyn's pitching shoved that club in sixth place, ahead of the Cardinals.

This year with a team that is a replica of last season's club, with the exception of three good pitchers, Bresnahan is once more ravishing the league with his terrors.

The fans are asking themselves if this is a third flash in the pan—if the native strength in the club makeup is sufficient to enable it to stand up under a campaign for a one-two-three berth.

Unexpected Guests

The farmer and his wife were about to sit down to a cold supper when they saw some old friends driving towards the house.

The good wife was equal to the occasion—thanks to her New Perfection Oil Cook-stove.

She had it lit in a moment, and her guests hardly were seated on the porch before a hearty hot meal was ready for the table—sausages and eggs and long rashers of streaky bacon, and rolls just crisped in the oven and fresh coffee—and the hostess herself as cool and neat as if she had not been near the kitchen.

She never could have managed it with an old-fashioned range. The New Perfection is the quickest, most convenient and best cooker on the market.

New Perfection WICK BLUE FLAME Oil Cook-stove

Made with 1, 2 and 3 burners, with long, turquoise blue enameled chimneys. Handsomely finished throughout. The 2- and 3-burner stoves can be had with or without a cabinet top, which is fitted with drop shelves, towel racks, etc.
